ABOUT THIS EDUCATION KIT

Indian Summer, 2011, oil and acrylic on canvas, 76 x 102cm

Art is something that makes you think and feel.

Art also tells a story - from the artist, to the viewer, which is you and me. We are here to discover stories from artworks shown in this exhibition, Paintings You Probably Haven't Seen: Selected Works 2000 - 2020. What matters about art is what makes it matter to you. It might be the bright yellows that remind you of the beach - the warm sand at your feet as you run toward the waves. Or the soft greys during a rainy day. Whether it's the colour and composition of painting; or its underlying content, art can be interesting for infinite reasons and none of them are wrong.

Based on research and our own interpretation, this Education Kit aims to give you insight into some of the stories found in these artworks. The artworks in this Education Kit were selected to introduce you to some of Ken Done's paintings and artworks that may not have seen before.

We would like to acknowledge the Cabrogal Clan of the Darug Nation who are the traditional custodians of the land that now resides within Liverpool City Council's boundaries. We acknowledge that this land was also accessed by peoples of the Dhurawal and Darug Nations.

PRESTIGIOUS

Very much respected and admired, usually because of being important.

QUINTESSENTIAL

Being the most typical example or most important part of something.

SERENE

Peaceful and calm; worried by nothing.

BIOGRAPHY : KEN DONE (AM)

Ken Done. Photography by Stuart Spence

Kenneth Stephen Done AM, or Ken Done as he is known is one of Australia's most celebrated artists. He started his career as an Art Director working in the advertising industry, but at 40 decided to focus on bringing an artist and had his first sole exhibition in 1980. Ken Done has been a Goodwill Ambassador for UNICEF since 1988 and received the Order of Australia (A.M.) for his services in Art, Design and Tourism in 1992. Together with his wife, Judy Done, Ken created the company "Done Art and Design." The company won the Fashion Industries of Australia's, Grand Award in 1993.

He has had over 100 solo shows around the world including Europe, USA and Japan. Ken Done's bright and vivid paintings continue to be viewed and enjoyed by Australians and the world. Some of his iconic artworks include the Australian landscape and a series of works for the Opening and Closing ceremonies of the Sydney 2000 Olympic Games.

PAINTINGS YOU PROBABLY HAVEN'T SEEN

SELECTED WORKS 2000 - 2020

“ These paintings were all done since the year 2000. They are sometimes works done on location or sometimes in the studio. And some are just what was in my imagination. ”
- KEN DONE

Paintings You Probably Haven't Seen: Selected Works 2000 – 2020, is like looking through a window into Ken Done's world: a glimpse into his daily life painting in his studio, strolling along the yellow sands of the beach or his imaginative dreams of poetry.

We will look at Ken Done's works through three key themes:

- Portraiture
- Landscapes
- Dreams.

These key themes will help us understand his paintings in detail.

PORTRAITURE

Portraiture is the artistic process of creating an artwork based on a person. The portrait shows something about the person – who they are. A self-portrait is when the artist creates a portrait of themselves. Though some portraits show only fragments of the person – like their pet, belongings or even a place.

Artists create portraiture to convey the subject's moods, appearance or perhaps a memory, to immortalise them. We can tell a lot about the artist and their portraits by their use of colour, shape and design.

ME, 2011, oil and acrylic on linen, 182 x 153 cm

ME

Me, is a mono-chromatic self-portrait. Ken Done entered it for the Archibald Prize, a prestigious portrait prize held at the Art Gallery of New South Wales. 'This painting took me a little over 70 years and one hour to paint', Ken Done states.

At a glance, yellow is perhaps the most striking part of the painting. 'Yellow has always been my favourite colour. It's strong, optimistic and sometimes on the edge of madness – like me,' he says.

Thinking about the dimensions you realise that it is a huge painting. Your eyes locks eyes with his, as he stares directly back at you. The thin black lines traces around his wrinkles, his nose and the rest of his face.

Big Ideas: Identity, Age, Time

Questions and Activities:

- Why did Ken Done use the colour yellow to paint himself?
- He used lots of lines to paint his face. What do these lines represent? How does it help us tell his age.
- Using a mirror, look at your face. What do you see? Draw a self-portrait.

JUDY

Judy, 2014, oil and acrylic on linen, 183 x 152 cm

Ken Done loved to paint his wife, Judy. She was his muse, and inspired him to create many artworks devoted to her. Judy loved their garden and was always seen tending the flowers and plants. Ken Done always painted her with beautiful, colourful flowers surrounding her. Flowers became a theme when he painted Judy.

In Judy, we see the dark outline of her face. She is almost hidden. The bed of multi-coloured flowers covers the entire painting. Judy's expression is soft and serene. Perhaps Done had captured his love of Judy, the flowers a symbol of the love and growth they have together.

Big Ideas: Love, Home, Growth

Questions and Activities:

- What did Judy like to do in their home?
- Look at the many flowers on Judy. What colours can you see?
- Where do you see plants and flowers? Draw your favourite colourful flowers

SPOT

Spot,
2016,
acrylic on linen,
100 x 80 cm

Spot was Ken Done's loveable dog. Like Judy, Spot was also Ken Done's muse and painted him often, either at his coastal studio by Chinaman's Beach, or at his Mosman studio in Sydney.

Here we see a mono-chromatic pattern of black spots and a painted black frame with the years '1986 – 2001'. Perhaps this is a memorial painting of Spot. Spot looks like he has just turned his happy little head to smile at you, even his tail is wagging!

Spot was featured in an exhibition called The Popular Pet Show in the Canberra Portrait Gallery, 2016. Imagine, little Spot amongst other portraits of famous pets, he has become quite the superstar!

Big Ideas: Colour, Companionship, Memorial

Questions and Activities:

- What is your first impression when looking at Spot? How does Spot make you feel?
- Using the structural frame, compare Judy and Spot. What are the differences and similarities?
- Do you have a pet? Or know someone who does? Or do you have a dream of having a pet of your own? Paint a portrait of a pet (imaginary or real).

MADONNA AND DOG

Madonna and dog, 2000, acrylic on canvas, 80 x 100 cm

Ken Done was very fond of both Judy and Spot and often painted them. Like Spot, Madonna and dog was entered for the Popular Pet Show. The 'Madonna' in Christianity means the Virgin Mary, but here in place of the Virgin Mary is his wife, Judy, with a radiating halo above her head. The Virgin Mary was often painted with Jesus as a baby. Here, in place of Jesus, Judy is cradling Spot, like a newborn, with his little paws and tail curled into her arms.

If you look closely, the bright blue painting hanging in this room, on the left, is a yacht with a very faint mast that resembles the cross. Madonna and dog is seen with a lot of religious imagery but the most striking feature of this painting are the vivid colours, a nod to one of his favourite artists, the French Fauvist, Henri Matisse. This artwork is quintessential to Done's painting style and design.

Big Ideas: Religious Imagery Adoration, Fondness

Questions and Activities:

- Describe Ken Done's use of colour, shape and space in this painting.
- Why do you think Ken Done paints Judy and Spot so often?
- Imagine you are Judy cradling Spot. Using the subjective frame, how does it feel to be in the same position? Write about a special moment between you and your pet or friend.

LANDSCAPE

Landscape art is an artistic process of creating works based on the natural environment. From beaches to rivers, forests to cliffs and mountains to the bushland, artists have been inspired by the wonderful landscapes that surround us.

A landscape shows us a place that the artist has lived in, travelled to, or imagined. To us, looking at landscape art can transport us to a familiar place or a long-ago memory.

Artists sometimes add man-made parts to their landscape, such as houses, bridges, buildings, objects and modes of transport amongst others to give the landscape a sense of place and character.

Night Dive I, 2014, oil, acrylic, enamel and oil crayon on linen, 120 x 181 cm

NIGHT DIVE I

Imagine being by the ocean, at night, standing over the dark water waiting to take the plunge into the deep. You take a deep breath ... SPLASH!!! The sound of the water gushes behind you, as you enter the cold, dark waters of the ocean. What can you see?

Night Dive I was a direct response to Ken Done's first time taking a night dive.

"It was a bit scary...On the edge of your vision, you always imagine there might be something about to take a nip out of you."

The painting shows the bottom of the ocean at night – dark with strange, colourful coral and floating creatures. Parts of the painting look translucent, ghostly and unusual. Perhaps Done wanted to capture a sense of feeling, his excitement of a new place to explore, a memory, rather than a picture-perfect painting of the deep sea.

Done states, " ... I really like the picture, and it shows you the difference between painting and photography. In a painting, you can show the feeling of something, and you can play all kinds of games. "

Big Ideas: Experiences, Feeling, Memory

Questions and Activities:

- Describe Ken Done's experience of night diving, what was it like?
- Which colour dominates this painting? Why do you think Ken Done chose this particular colour?
- Have you ever experienced a 'first-time' of something? Maybe it was your first day of school, or your first time on a holiday. Write a recount about your experience.

YELLOW BEACH II

Yellow beach II, 2016, acrylic on linen, 152 x 122 cm

The beach is the quintessential landscape of Australia, and we are surrounded by so many. The yellow sands and the crystal blue waters reminds us of hot days in summer, holidaying with family and friends. In Yellow Beach II, we see the way Done observes the beach lifestyle and celebration of the life that Australia has to give.

Ken Done loved the beach so much that he had a studio in Chinaman's Beach. Yellow dominates this painting, which not only depicts the yellow sand at the beach, but Done also liked to use yellow, as it was his favourite colour. Done made several panels of Yellow Beach, this being the second.

You can see figures in different perspectives and positions – the figures being people. The foreshortened sunbathing person with tan skin, the red sunburnt figure on its side sitting, towels from a bird's eye view and other various objects people take to the beach. Like most of Ken Done's paintings, we can relate to this image in a nostalgic way, and it takes us back to our own experiences of the beach.

Big Ideas: Perspective, Nostalgia, Observation

Questions and Activities:

- What are the different lines and shapes in Yellow Beach II?
- Let's look at the figures in this painting. What different perspectives can you see?
- Do you remember a beach holiday with family and friends? Create a painting of this moment.

LOOKING TO THE BEACH

Looking to the Beach, 2005, oil and acrylic on canvas, 122 x 183 cm

Looking to the Beach is a great example of looking through Ken Done's world in his studio. We are transported to Ken Done's work space: we can see the room, dimly lit. There is a chair to the left and his colourful paint palette in the middle and a small round table next to it. To the right we see figures from Arnhem Land and Papua New Guinea displayed with his plastic sand spades, covered in blobs of paint, hanging on the wall.

But what we can see directly in the middle is the beach, with its soft yellows, colourful abstract figures dotted around the canvas and a large palm tree. This observation could be Ken Done, making, and painting a work in progress.

Big Ideas: Space, Personal Belongings, Environment

Questions and Activities:

- When looking at this painting, how is space shown? Think about the placement of the objects, how big or small are they? Describe this in a few sentences.
- Look at the figures on the beach painting in the middle. What are these blobs and shapes? Write this down in a list.
- Look at your own bedroom. What kind of objects do you see? How does this space tell us about yourself? Draw a quick sketch of your bedroom.

DREAMS

Sometimes while we sleep, thoughts and images begin to appear. They could be a mix of memories, emotions, things we have seen and experienced or just unexplainable situations that occur randomly in our sleep. From a child to an adult, we have all experienced a dream at some stage in our lives.

Dreams can be vivid, wonderful, frightening, fantastical, confusing and relaxing. They can be an escape of the reality we live in.

Artists are full of wild dreams and imaginations. They use theirs to explore new ideas. New colours, shapes, ways of creating and even inventing. Creating art is a way of showing and expressing their dreams.

Butterfly dreams I, yellow, 2006, enamel and oil crayon on canvas, each 100 x 80cm (1 of 4 panels)

BUTTERFLY DREAMS I, YELLOW

After a caterpillar leaves its cocoon, it transforms into a butterfly. Butterflies live very short lives and spend their remaining days amongst beautiful flowers. Ken Done wanted to show this period of time, between a butterfly's life through their dreams.

Butterfly dreams I, is part of 4 yellow panels that sit side by side. On this panel we can see some faint writing, a poem. The rest is written on all four panels that says:

“I would learn
of their dreams in flowers
but ah!
Butterflies have no voice.”

Faintly painted delicate wildflowers, mushrooms, flower petals, leaves and stems adorn this panel. Ken Done stated that, “...if a butterfly slept and had a dream, that's what it would be about...”

Big Ideas: Words, Poetry, Thoughts

Questions and Activities:

- What is the main idea of this artwork? How can you tell? Write your ideas down.
- Ken Done uses very light and dry brushstrokes in this painting. Why do you think he uses this technique? Write why in a few sentences.
- Have you ever had a wild dream? Recount your dream in a drawing.

HAIKU SUITE III: FIRST DREAM (PANEL 1)

Haiku suite III: First Dream, 1996 – 2000, acrylic on canvas, 100 x 80 cm

Ken Done spent some time in Japan and exhibited his works there. He was inspired by the Japanese poetry writing known as Haiku.

Haikus are written in a specific way, where a 5-7-5 unrhymed structure is carried out:

First line has 5 syllables

Second line has 7 syllables

Third and final line has 5 syllables

Haikus often highlight a specific moment in time. In this artwork Ken Done writes about Hatsuyume, meaning the first dream you experience in the new year. In Japanese culture, the Hatsuyume, or first dream experienced, indicates or predicts the outlook of your new year. The poem roughly states that “Too good, hatsuyume, must be a lie”.

Big Ideas: Culture, Dreams, Outlook

Questions and Activities:

- Can you guess the two figures above and below the poetry? What do you think they are?
- The haiku style of poetry highlights a moment in time. Try writing your own haiku about your day.
